Mike,

If this is likely to move ahead, we will need to integrate the CAF planners into the integrated planning team (RCMP, OPP and OPS). We have tasked an individual person in the RCMP to work with CAF separately to ensure limited people know what may happen. The biggest concern would be the OPS staff becoming involved (reporting up) and then we see it in a news brief that GoC is brining in the military.

I prefer the current path until there is a decision and then we roll into more integrated posture. Things have been too unpredictable at the OPS level.

Mark

Hi Paul,

Just thinking about our conversation yesterday and you heard the conversation last night around scenario planning in the Track 2 lane and the expectation that it is moving at pace. Note that Samantha at DOJ is really pushing hard on the legal side around authorities and what may actually be feasible.

I suspect that at DMOC this morning, and to some extent the IRG at 4pm today, the CAF will be asked to describe progress on this item.

I suggest your team reaches out to Craig Oldham at PCO as I think he is doing some work that may be helpful to your efforts.

Thanks Mike
